Kitchen planning.

The vertical grip ledge is used with tall units. Whether a swing door, flap door or pull-out is involved – it provides the possibility of planning all unit variants unrestrictedly. All models with a cubic geometry that matches the purist planning style are combinable.

Wall units and base units can be optionally combined from the Trendline handleless series or also with a conventional handle.

With the handleless kitchen, you grasp the front from behind to open it. A small shell handle, invisible from the front, is milled in at an ergonomic height for this purpose. Perfectly technically sophisticated down to the last detail: in our vertical solution, the strip installed between two tall units conceals the carcass front edge.
